

2022 RegTech Awards Judges

Peter Chow

Director, Innovation & Future of Work, RBC

Peter leads the risk innovation practice within RBC, focusing on the development of new capabilities and workforce transformation through change management, behavioral science, and new ways of thinking.

Peter's work sits at the intersection of cutting edge technology, best-in-class risk practices and service design.

Peter has been an Arbor Award winning lecturer at the University of Toronto and currently sits on the Catalyst Council at the Holland Bloorview Kids Rehabilitation Hospital.

Ima Okonny

Chief Data Officer, Employment and Social Development Canada (ESDC)

Ima is the Chief Data Officer at ESDC and has over 22 years of experience in the field of data. She has extensive experience with building the evidence base with forward-looking policy development and research through the development of analytical databases and tools, the implementation of departmental data reporting and release strategies, the management of data and data privacy protocols.

Ima has an educational background in Mathematics, Computer Programming, and Public Management, and during her time with the Government of Canada, she has received several nominations and awards for her leadership and results.

She is passionate about helping organizations develop the capabilities required to ethically and intentionally unleash concrete business value from data.

Mark Pratt

SVP, Chief Legal & Compliance Officer, BMO Personal and Commercial Banking Canada

Mark Pratt is the Senior Vice-President and Chief Legal and Compliance Officer for BMO's Canadian Personal and Commercial Banking businesses in Canada. Prior to his current role, he was based in London as Chief Legal and Compliance Officer, EMEA, with accountability for leading the Legal & Regulatory Compliance teams supporting all of BMO's European businesses.

Mark joined BMO in 2012 as Associate General Counsel in the Wealth Management legal group, leading the Canadian and International Funds and Asset Management team, and subsequently becoming Associate General Counsel and Managing Director, Derivatives Legal Group, BMO Capital Markets.

Mark started his career at McMillan LLP in 1992 and has held senior legal and compliance positions in Canada and the United States at a number of major Canadian financial institutions.

Mark graduated from Osgoode Hall Law School in 1992 and has been a practicing member of the Law Society of Ontario since 1994. He also holds a B.A. in German and Spanish from McGill University and an LL.M. in EU law from the University of Leicester.